

Screening Report

Network:	CBS	Screening Date:	3/11/2024
Program:	Late Show with Stephen Colbert, The
Air Date/Time:	3/11/2024 11:35:00 PM	Rough Cut:	Yes
Program Type:	Variety	Repeat:	No
Episode Name:	Kristen Stewart/Tom Hollander
Episode Code:	1474	Original Air Date/Time:
Rating/Clarification:	TV-14

Advisory:

No Advisory

Disclaimer:

No Disclaimer

Synopsis:

Stephen welcomes Kristen Stewart and Tom Hollander.

Areas of concern for this episode:

- Animal Issue
- Brand Mention
- Brand Visible
- Celebrity Reference
- Developmental Disability
- Hate Speech
- Historical Reference
- Homophobia
- Homosexuality
- Incest
- Industry Related
- Language
- Physical Illness-Injury
- Political
- Sexism
- Sexual Dialogue
- Sexual Innuendo
- Suicide
- Tobacco, Nicotine
- Transphobia

Full Content Report:

Cold open: President Biden has slammed President Trump for meeting with Hungary's dictator, Viktor Orban. In a fake commercial, Fisher-Price introduces the Presidential Playset, which gives users everything they need to pretend they're the commander-in-chief, including fake photo-ops. For ages 4-6 and 77 and over.

Brand Visible
Political

Intro and opening credits.

Stephen performs the monologue. He congratulates his fellow late-night host Jimmy Kimmel for hosting last night's Oscars, and congratulates "Oppenheimer" for taking home the most awards, including Best Picture, Best Actor, and Best Supporting Actor. The ceremony had many fun moments, like Ryan Gosling singing "I'm Just Ken," Arnold Schwarzenegger and Danny DeVito reuniting, and John Cena presenting Best Costume in the nude. "Good thing he held onto that card, because we might have seen his 'maestro,' know what I'm saying? His 'poor thing,' if you catch my drift. His 'oppen-penis.'" The weirdest moment came when Al Pacino gave an odd introduction for Best Picture. Stephen imagines him trying to order meat at a deli counter.

Brand Mention (4)
Industry Related
Celebrity Reference
Sexual Innuendo

Stephen continues the monologue. This weekend was the unofficial kickoff of the general election. We only have two candidates left, and they have starkly different messages. Biden's message is, "vote for me because Trump is terrible," while Trump's is, "vote for me because I'm terrible." In a clip, Trump mocks the speech impediment Biden has had his entire life. First off, Biden didn't stutter like that. Second, Trump is one of the weirdest speakers in human history. In another clip, Trump tries to claim his tendency to bounce around between topics makes him intelligent. If being distracted makes you smart, Stephen would like to award the Nobel Laureate to his dog.

Political Animal Issue
Developmental Disability

Stephen continues the monologue. Trump is no longer trying to hide his awfulness. His critics have accused him of being a dictator, and he has responded by befriendng dictators like Hungary's Viktor Orban, who has weakened the institutions of democracy, eroded the legal system, and eliminated an effective opposition. It's no surprise that Trump invited Orban to Mar-A-Lago. According to new interviews with former national security adviser John Bolton and former chief of staff John Kelly, Trump has always loved dictators. Kelly has said that Trump loves Hitler, even saying that Hitler "did some good things." When Kelly asked Trump what "good things" Hitler did, Trump said he rebuilt the economy. Looks like he read the "mein" of "Mein Kampf," but never got to the "kampf." Trump expressed admiration for Hitler's military staff's loyalty, but when Kelly informed him that many German generals tried to assassinate Hitler, Trump revealed he didn't know that. Stephen, "Turned out the Nazis had a dark side." According to Bolton, Trump likes that guys like Erdogan in Turkey get to put people in jail and don't have to ask permission.

Brand Mention
Industry Related
Hate Speech
Political Historical Reference

Stephen continues the monologue. Massive news over the weekend: Someone took a photo of Kate Middleton. It's a big deal because she has made no public appearances since undergoing abdominal surgery two months ago. Rumors have ranged from "she's dead" to "she's divorcing Prince William." It's all in today's Sun, "Zombie Kate spotted getting her groove back with Pete Davidson." To quiet rumors, Kate released a photo of her with her kids. Several news outlets pulled the photo, however, after noticing the image had been manipulated. These were Photoshop errors and not, as many assumed, the result of centuries of inbreeding. Today, Kate admitted she had edited the photo. Speaking of suspicious cover stories, a new Pentagon report has found no evidence of alien visits or hidden spacecraft. This can only mean the opposite. The report also allegedly debunks theories that the US government and private companies had reverse-engineered alien technology. Then how do they explain Soft Scrub, which is both smooth and abrasive? Only tech beyond our understanding can fight toilet ring, hard water, and limescale stains. And there's no way humans came up with the slogan, "Cleans from the first wipe."

Incest
Brand Mention (5)
Industry Related
Political
Celebrity Reference
Physical Illness-Injury

Break 1 @ 14:00

Introducing the segment "Meanwhile," Stephen says in part that he sometimes scrapes together the "remnants of a half-eaten taco in my pocket and the tobacco from a cigarette butt and mash it into what's left of a very ripe grapefruit husk, then douse it all with Everclear and set it on fire to cook up my segment, Meanwhile." Meanwhile, last week a whole wheel fell off a Boeing airplane during takeoff. In a statement, Boeing said, "Don't worry. No one was hurt because the wheel's fall was broken by a door that blew off one of our other planes." Meanwhile, a New Jersey man tried to make a viral TikTok by recording himself dunking his head, face-first, in a barrel of pickles at the convenience store and deli. He then turned himself into police. A dramatic reenactment can be seen on this week's episode of "Law & Order: SVU, Special Vlasic Unit." Meanwhile, a scorpion stung a man in his testicles while he slept at a Las Vegas hotel. In the hotel's defense, the man asked for a 6 A.M. wakeup. To Stephen's shock, the hotel has protocols for this kind of incident. "Welcome to Caesars Palace. Here's your room key. If you need anything, dial 1 for the concierge and 3 for

Brand Mention (6)
Tobacco, Nicotine
Industry Related (3)
Animal Issue

'snake bit my taint.'"

"Meanwhile" continues. Meanwhile, in gluten news, archaeologists have discovered the world's oldest bread in Turkey. Not to be confused with the world's oldest bread "and" turkey, which is at the Port Authority Arby's. Researchers say the bread dates back to 6600 BC, which they were able to determine because it came with a clip that said "best by 6599 BC." Meanwhile, researchers say education might slow the pace of aging and increase longevity. But it's a devil's bargain: While people can add years to their life, they will be nerd years. Meanwhile, a 4,000-year-old lipstick uncovered in Iran may be the oldest ever found. This explains Maybelline's new slogan, "Maybe she's born with it, maybe she died 4,000 years ago in Iran." The ancient tube is uncannily similar to modern ones, which means it was discovered with a broken cap and covered in bagel crumbs at the bottom of your purse. Meanwhile, movie star Harrison Ford says John Williams' score for "Indiana Jones" follows him wherever he goes, saying when he had his last colonoscopy, they played it on the operating-room speakers. Even worse is the doctor's reaction when he saw the colonoscopy's results. (A clip from "Raiders of the Lost Ark" featuring melting faces is shown.) Meanwhile, after a recent incredible 35 points in one game, Indiana State's star center Robbie Avila has been dubbed by the Internet as "Cream Abdul-Jabbar." Other options considered were Milk Chamberlain and Shaquille Oatmeal.

Brand Mention (3)
Industry Related (4)
Celebrity Reference

Break 2 @ 20:00

Stephen welcomes the star of "Twilight," "Clouds of Sils Maria," and "Spencer," Kristen Stewart, who now stars in "Love Lies Bleeding." In a clip from "Love Lies Bleeding," she calls her father a "piece of shit" while speaking to an FBI agent. Stephen asks Kristen what's on her mind. Kristen says she's excited about her new movie, and the fact she's directing her first movie. Stephen asks if any questions make her go, "Aw, you piece of bleep." Kristen says when she was younger, she tried hard to control interviews, but she now is willing to answer any question. Stephen holds up a photo of Kristen at the premiere of "Love Lies Bleeding" and asks if her outfit was uncomfortable. Kristen acknowledges it doesn't look comfy, but says it wasn't too bad. Stephen notes "Love Lies Bleeding" is a crime story, a romance, and a family drama. Kristen says the director, Rose Glass, called her up and told her she wrote a movie specifically for her. Kristen plays an internally strong woman who falls in love with a literal strong woman, who is also a little unhinged.

Brand Visible
Brand Mention
Homosexuality
Language
Political
Celebrity Reference

Continuing his interview with Kristen, Stephen holds up a controversial Rolling Stones cover featuring Kristen with her hand down her jock strap while wearing an open vest. One X user accused Rolling Stone of trying to normalize transgender people by making Kristen look like a man. Kristen notes she's seen a lot of male pubic hair on magazine covers, but people who are sexist and homophobic get offended by female sexuality. She exclaims, "Bleep you! ... But I never will!" (Her mouth is blurred out over the bleep.) Stephen brings up the time Donald Trump attacked her on Twitter. Kristen reads her statement from the time, "Of course he had to weigh in. He's such a little baby. Bleep you, bitch."

Brand Visible (2)
Sexual Dialogue
Language
Political Sexism
Transphobia
Homophobia

Break 3 @ 28:00

Continuing his interview with Kristen, Stephen holds up a photo of Kristen posing with her fiancée Dylan Meyer and asks if she was nervous about working with her. Kristen says her job is so personal that it doesn't really feel like she has a job. She appreciates the job bringing them closer together. Stephen asks about her directorial debut. Kristen says she's been trying to make the movie for six or seven years, and they're finally set to begin shooting in Latvia. Stephen holds up a photo of Kristen posing with Jodie Foster, who is also openly gay, and asks if they keep in touch. Kristen says they do. When she watched last night's Oscars, she got emotional seeing Jodie crying. Stephen asks what she remembers about filming "Panic Room" with Jodie. Noting she was 10 at the time, Kristen says Jodie threw her an 11th-birthday party.

Brand Mention
Homosexuality
Celebrity Reference

Break 4 @ 33:00

Stephen welcomes the star of "White Lotus," "In the Loop," and "The Night Manager," Tom Hollander, who now stars in "Feud: Capote Vs. the Swans." In a clip from "Feud," Capote talks about people's need to forgive and be forgiven. Stephen commends Tom's work as Capote, a role 20 years in the making. Tom explains he auditioned twice to play Capote in the last 20 years, but didn't get either role. Philip Seymour Hoffman got one of the roles, while Toby Jones got the other. While filming "Feud," Tom lived in the same apartment that Hoffman lived in when he played Capote. Tom notes Capote often got attached to things that weren't good for him, like alcohol and fame. Stephen asks if he would have wanted to hang out with Capote. Tom doesn't think so. "He was a complicated, tricky person. He could be so mean, but also so brilliant. If he liked you, you probably felt his aura, but it could turn. The lonelier

Brand Visible
Brand Mention (2)
Industry Related
Celebrity Reference

he got, the more unstable he got." Stephen explains "Feud," saying Capote became friends with New York socialites known as "the swans," but betrayed their trust by writing about them. Tom says forgiveness is easier said than done.

Continuing his interview with Tom, Stephen lists off some of the actresses who plays swans, including Demi Moore, Diane Lane, and Chloe Sevigny, and holds up a photo of all of them together. Tom jokes the photo makes it look like he's being auctioned off. Stephen asks if having a child has changed his outlook on his life and career. Tom says it's changed his future. "Now, there is one. There's him." He jokes suicide was an option before, but is off the table now because he has to care for his son.

Celebrity Reference Suicide

Break 5 @ 41:00

Goodnight and end credits.

Client-Specific Information:

	Type	Length
Fisher-Price	Brand Visible	00:30
President Biden has slammed President Trump for meeting with Hungary's dictator, Viktor Orban. In a fake commercial, Fisher-Price introduces the Presidential Playset, which gives users everything they need to pretend they're the commander-in-chief, including fake photo-ops. For ages 4-6 and 77 and over.
Universal Pictures	Brand Mention	NA
He congratulates his fellow late-night host Jimmy Kimmel for hosting last night's Oscars, and congratulates "Oppenheimer" for taking home the most awards, including Best Picture, Best Actor, and Best Supporting Actor. The ceremony had many fun moments, like John Cena presenting Best Costume in the nude. "Good thing he held onto that card, because we might have seen his 'maestro,' know what I'm saying? His 'poor thing,' if you catch my drift. His 'oppen-penis.'"
Warner Brothers	Brand Mention	NA
Barbie: The ceremony had many fun moments, like Ryan Gosling singing "I'm Just Ken," Arnold Schwarzenegger and Danny DeVito reuniting, and John Cena presenting Best Costume in the nude.
Netflix	Brand Mention	NA
Maestro: The ceremony had many fun moments, like Ryan Gosling singing "I'm Just Ken," Arnold Schwarzenegger and Danny DeVito reuniting, and John Cena presenting Best Costume in the nude. "Good thing he held onto that card, because we might have seen his 'maestro,' know what I'm saying? His 'poor thing,' if you catch my drift. His 'oppen-penis.'"
Searchlight Pictures	Brand Mention	NA
Poor Things: The ceremony had many fun moments, like Ryan Gosling singing "I'm Just Ken," Arnold Schwarzenegger and Danny DeVito reuniting, and John Cena presenting Best Costume in the nude. "Good thing he held onto that card, because we might have seen his 'maestro,' know what I'm saying? His 'poor thing,' if you catch my drift. His 'oppen-penis.'"
Trump	Brand Mention	NA
It's no surprise that Trump invited Orban to Mar-A-Lago. According to new interviews with former national security adviser John Bolton and former chief of staff John Kelly, Trump has always loved dictators.
Soft Scrub	Brand Mention	NA
The report also allegedly debunks theories that the US government and private companies had reverse-engineered alien technology. Then how do they explain Soft Scrub, which is both smooth and abrasive? Only tech beyond our understanding can fight toilet ring, hard water, and limescale stains. And there's no way humans came up with the slogan, "Cleans from the first wipe."
Cottonelle	Brand Mention	NA
The report also allegedly debunks theories that the US government and private companies had reverse-engineered alien technology. Then how do they explain Soft Scrub, which is both smooth and abrasive? Only tech beyond our understanding can fight toilet ring, hard water, and limescale stains. And there's no way humans came up with the slogan, "Cleans from the first wipe."

Sun, The

Brand Mention

NA

It's a big deal because she has made no public appearances since undergoing abdominal surgery two months ago. Rumors have ranged from "she's dead" to "she's divorcing Prince William." It's all in today's Sun, "Zombie Kate spotted getting her groove back with Pete Davidson."

Adobe Photoshop

Brand Mention

NA

To quiet rumors, Kate released a photo of her with her kids. Several news outlets pulled the photo, however, after noticing the image had been manipulated. These were Photoshop errors and not, as many assumed, the result of centuries of inbreeding.

20th Century Studios

Brand Mention

NA

Rumors have ranged from "she's dead" to "she's divorcing Prince William." It's all in today's Sun, "Zombie Kate spotted getting her groove back with Pete Davidson."

Everclear

Brand Mention

NA

Introducing the segment "Meanwhile," Stephen says in part that he sometimes scrapes together the "remnants of a half-eaten taco in my pocket and the tobacco from a cigarette butt and mash it into what's left of a very ripe grapefruit husk, then douse it all with Everclear and set it on fire to cook up Meanwhile."

Boeing

Brand Mention

NA

Last week a whole wheel fell off a Boeing airplane during takeoff. In a statement, Boeing said, "Don't worry. No one was hurt because the wheel's fall was broken by a door that blew off one of our other planes."

TikTok

Brand Mention

NA

A New Jersey man tried to make a viral TikTok by recording himself dunking his head, face-first, in a barrel of pickles at the convenience store and deli. He then turned himself into police. A dramatic reenactment can be seen on this week's episode of "Law & Order: SVU, Special Vlastic Unit."

NBC Universal

Brand Mention

NA

A New Jersey man tried to make a viral TikTok by recording himself dunking his head, face-first, in a barrel of pickles at the convenience store and deli. He then turned himself into police. A dramatic reenactment can be seen on this week's episode of "Law & Order: SVU, Special Vlastic Unit."

Caesars Palace

Brand Mention

NA

A scorpion stung a man in his testicles while he slept at a Las Vegas hotel. In the hotel's defense, the man asked for a 6 AM wakeup. To Stephen's shock, the hotel has protocols for this kind of incident. "Welcome to Caesars Palace. Here's your room key. If you need anything, dial 1 for the concierge and 3 for 'snake bit my taint.'"

Vlastic

Brand Mention

NA

Meanwhile, a New Jersey man tried to make a viral TikTok by recording himself dunking his head, face-first, in a barrel of pickles at the convenience store and deli. He then turned himself into police. A dramatic reenactment can be seen on this week's episode of "Law & Order: SVU, Special Vlastic Unit."

Arby's

Brand Mention

NA

In gluten news, archaeologists have discovered the world's oldest bread in Turkey. Not to be confused with the world's oldest bread "and" turkey, which is cat the Port Authority Arby's.

Maybelline

Brand Mention

NA

A 4,000-year-old lipstick uncovered in Iran may be the oldest ever found. This explains Maybelline's new slogan, "Maybe she's born with it, maybe she died 4,000 years ago in Iran."

Paramount Pictures

Brand Mention

NA

Movie star Harrison Ford says John Williams' score for "Indiana Jones" follows him wherever he goes, saying when he had his last colonoscopy, they played it on the operating-room speakers. Even worse is the doctor's reaction when he saw the colonoscopy's results (a clip from "Raiders of the Lost Ark" featuring melting faces is shown).

Summit Entertainment	Brand Mention	NA
Twilight: Stephen welcomes the star of "Twilight," "Clouds of Sils Maria," and "Spencer," Kristen Stewart, who now stars in "Love Lies Bleeding."
A24 Films	Brand Visible	00:30
Stephen and Kristen discuss her new film "Love Lies Bleeding" and show a clip from it.
Rolling Stone	Brand Visible	00:05
Stephen holds up a controversial Rolling Stones cover featuring Kristen with her hand down her jock strap while wearing an open vest. One X user accused Rolling Stone of trying to normalize transgender people by making Kristen look like a man. Kristen notes she's seen a lot of male pubic hair on magazine covers, but people who are sexist and homophobic get offended by female sexuality.
Twitter	Brand Visible	00:05
Stephen holds up a controversial Rolling Stones cover featuring Kristen with her hand down her jock strap while wearing an open vest. One X user accused Rolling Stone of trying to normalize transgender people by making Kristen look like a man. Kristen notes she's seen a lot of male pubic hair on magazine covers, but people who are sexist and homophobic get offended by female sexuality.
Sony Pictures	Brand Mention	NA
Stephen asks what she remembers about filming "Panic Room" with Jodie. Noting she was 10 at the time, Kristen says Jodie threw her a 11th-birthday party.
HBO	Brand Mention	NA
White Lotus: Stephen welcomes the star of "White Lotus," "In the Loop," and "The Night Manager," Tom Hollander, who now stars in "Feud: Capote Vs. the Swans."
AMC Networks	Brand Mention	NA
The Night Manager: Stephen welcomes the star of "White Lotus," "In the Loop," and "The Night Manager," Tom Hollander, who now stars in "Feud: Capote Vs. the Swans."
FX Network	Brand Visible	00:30
Stephen and Tom discuss Tom's series "Feud: Capote Vs. the Swans," and show a clip from it.
Food	Industry Related	NA
The weirdest moment came when Al Pacino gave a weird introduction for Best Picture. Stephen imagines him trying to order meat at a deli counter.
Government-Politics-Military	Industry Related	NA
Trump expressed admiration for Hitler's military staff's loyalty, but when Kelly informed him that many German generals tried to assassinate Hitler, Trump revealed he didn't know that. "Turned out the Nazis had a dark side.
Government-Politics-Military	Industry Related	NA
A new Pentagon report has found no evidence of alien visits or hidden spacecraft. This can only mean the opposite. The report also allegedly debunks theories that the US government and private companies had reverse-engineered alien technology. Then how do they explain Soft Scrub, which is both smooth and abrasive?
Travel	Industry Related	NA
Last week a whole wheel fell off a Boeing airplane during takeoff. In a statement, Boeing said, "Don't worry. No one was hurt because the wheel's fall was broken by a door that blew off one of our other planes."
Food	Industry Related	NA

A New jersey man tried to make a viral TikTok by recording himself dunking his head, face-first, in a barrel of pickles at the convenience store and deli. He then turned himself into police. A dramatic reenactment can be seen on this week's episode of "Law & Order: SVU, Special Vlasic Unit."

Travel

Industry Related

NA

A scorpion stung a man in his testicles while he slept at a Las Vegas hotel. In the hotel's defense, the man asked for a 6 AM wakeup. To Stephen's shock, the hotel has protocols for this kind of incident. "Welcome to Caesars Palace. Here's your room key. If you need anything, dial 1 for the concierge and 3 for 'snake bit my taint.'"

Food

Industry Related

NA

In gluten news, archaeologists have discovered the world's oldest bread in Turkey. Not to be confused with the world's oldest bread "and" turkey, which is cat the Port Authority Arby's. Researchers says the bread dates to 6600 BC, which they were able to determine because it came with a clip that said "best by 6599 BC."

Education

Industry Related

NA

Researchers say education might slow the pace of aging and increase longevity. But it's a devil's bargain: While people can add years to their life, they will be nerd years.

Personal Care

Industry Related

NA

A 4,000-year-old lipstick uncovered in Iran may be the oldest ever found. This explains Maybelline's new slogan, "Maybe she's born with it, maybe she died 4,000 years ago in Iran." The ancient tube is uncannily similar to modern ones, which means it was discovered with a broken cap and covered in bagel crumbs at the bottom of your purse.

Health Care

Industry Related

NA

Movie star Harrison Ford says John Williams' score for "Indiana Jones" follows him wherever he goes, saying when he had his last colonoscopy, they played it on the operating-room speakers. Even worse is the doctor's reaction when he saw the colonoscopy's results (a clip from "Raiders of the Lost Ark" featuring melting faces is shown).

Alcohol

Industry Related

NA

Tom notes Capote often got attached to things that weren't good for him, like alcohol and fame.

---

Contact: MIS screening department at (212) 329-2200 or miseast@misnyc.com

All rights, title and interests in this Content Screening Report are the sole and absolute property of MIS for any and all purposes. Content Screening Reports are for the exclusive business use of the purchasing entity. Original reports, copies of reports or written excerpts may not be shared with any other media and/or advertising agency, television network, business or any individual who is not a member of the account group for which the report was purchased. All information contained in this report is confidential and may not be publicly disclosed in any way. Any social media disclosure, media disclosure, inter-personal disclosure or any other disclosure of any confidential information contained in the report is strictly prohibited. All information provided by MIS is for internal research only and may not be sold or distributed, in whole or in part, to any third party for any form of consideration whatsoever.